The Virginia Psychological Association selects the Western Virginia Water Authority as the 2010 Psychologically Healthy Workplace Award winner

ROANOKE, VA – The Western Virginia Water Authority is pleased to have been selected as the winner of the 2010 Psychologically Healthy Workplace award given annually by the Virginia Psychological Association. The Psychologically Healthy Workplace Awards recognize organizations for their efforts to foster employee health and well-being while enhancing organizational performance. The Authority was recognized for involving employees in the creation of the Authority in 2004, offering unique wellness and educational opportunities and investing in outreach programs to benefit employees and the community.

Providing employees with opportunities to become healthier, enhance their skills and obtain new levels of confidence makes happier and better employees now and in the future. And it provides the Authority with a dedicated and motivated team that has the skills needed to provide quality services to our regional community.

The award was presented to the Authority on Tuesday, November 23, 2010 by Dr. Lou Perrott, past President of the Virginia Psychological Association and Virginia's representative to the American Psychological Association's Business of Practice Network.
